

MANIPULATIONS OF RUBBER PROMOTERS BROUGHT TO LIGHT

Petition for Receiver of S. & M Company Bares Alleged Fraud —Say They Increased Stock from Twenty Thousand to Half Million Illegally.

Alleged details of the transactions by which the S. & M. Tire and Rubber Co. project of this city illegally increased its capital stock from twenty thousand to a half million dollars and how the officials sold stock of this kind to local people by misrepresentation are contained in the petition filed in common pleas court Friday, by Attorney K. E. Pomerene for the Coshocton Board of Trade asking that a receiver be appointed for the company at once.

It is also prayed that bonus stock taken by directors and promoters of the company to the amount of about $215,000 for which nothing was paid into the treasury, be canceled and that the receiver be authorized to pay creditors, and divide the remainder of what may be realized from the holdings of the company among the persons who have paid real money for their stock.

The alleged details of the manipulations of the promoters of the company are of a sensational nature and much interest is taken in the case on account of the large amount of stock which was sold here.

The Agreement.

According to the petition an agreement was made April 15, 1913 with the rubber company whereby they would locate in Coshocton a plant for the business of manufacturing tires and other rubber products. The company agreed to equip the plant with machinery and to commence operations not later than August 1, 1913. It was agreed that the plant should at the end of the first year be employing not less than 100 persons; at the end of the second year not less than 200 should be employed and so on increasing the number to 500 employees at the end of the five years. It was also agreed that the company should operate the plant continuously for five years and in consideration, a sufficient deed to property known as The Premium Plant and one and one-half acres of land adjoining.

SICK LIST

Mrs. S. G. Sawyer, who was recovering from a two weeks' illness, suffered a relapse, Friday.

Victim Blames Zanesville Jail For His Condition

David Sashman, aged 24, who claims St. Louis as his home, is seriously ill at the City hospital. Wednesday a week ago, Sashman and a companion applied at the infirmary for food and shelter and the former was taken ill Thursday with typhoid fever and later taken to the hospital.

Sashman claims that his illness is the result of severe treatment which he received at the hands of the Zanesville police authorities. He claims that he was arrested on a charge of loitering, just two hours after he reached that city, and was placed in a cell with ten other prisoners, where he was confined for two weeks without stepping outside, and that food was simply handed in to them three times a day. He also claims that no bed or chairs were provided and the conditions were unsanitary.

Reports however from Zanesville seem to indicate that Sashman was one of a party of eight that were loitering about the city. One of the party fell on the street, the point of his chin upon the street curbing, the fall resulting in a broken neck. The other seven it seems were rounded up by the police while more or less intoxicated and arraigned before Police Judge Waters. They were unruly and were sentenced to a indefinite period of confinement. The seven were confined in a single cell as punishment. This of course did not allow them freedom of movement and as there was but a single bench in the cell, but one could sleep at a time. They are said to have their food regularly and other than that they could not sit down or sleep at once, where treated as all the other prisoners.

New Addition Being Opened

Contractor R. N. Kirk has commenced the grading of the lots in the Hay addition just south of the Wheeling and Lake Erie track on Orange street. Mr. Kirk will excavate for the extension of South Sixth street to Elm, and construct cement walks around the entire addition and for each of the forty-eight lots. The Hay homestead dwelling will be sold and removed from the premises.

If weather permits the work will be finished in about thirty days, but should freezing weather set in, the cement laying will be delayed. Twelve large trees have already been removed from the premises and two other small remain to be taken out.

Farmer Is Found Guilty On White Slavery Charge

Lima, Ohio, March 19.—Eugene Thompson, well known Hargen county farmer, living near Alger, Ohio, was convicted of white slavery in the United States district court at Toledo today.

Mary Shull, the principal complainant against Thompson, returned to her home here this afternoon. Thompson was immediately sentenced to five years in the Moundsville, W. Va., penitentiary.

The defendant was accused of enticing Mary Shull and Ella Ellis, the latter an Alger girl, from their homes last Thanksgiving and taking them to Jamestown, N. Y., thence to Chicago and other cities in the West. He finally abandoned them in Iowa, it was charged. The trial of Thompson, which lasted three days, was sensational and much of the evidence was unprintable.

Admiralty Scouts Report
Of Warship Being Sunk
By the Turks

London, March 19.—Accurate fire of the German gunners who are working the great Krupp guns in the Turkish forts on the Dardanelles, has caused a cessation of the concentrated bombardment of the Turkish works by the Anglo-French fleet, according to dispatches from Athens.

Later, however, six British and four French battleships attacked three fortresses in the Dardanelles and another squadron opened operations against the Paros Bay forts, but the bombardment ceased at two o'clock this afternoon.

The report emanating from Constantinople that the 12,000-ton French battleship Bouvet had been sunk by the Turkish forts was scouted in admiralty circles but no official statement has been issued up to noon.

Optimism which greeted early reports of the fleet's successful attacks against the Dardanelles forts has been lessened by later advices.

The naval expert of the London Times, in reviewing the situation in the Dardanelles sphere of operations, expresses the belief that the international fleet cannot force a passage through the strait without the co-operation of land forces. As the Turks have concentrated 250,000 men on the Dardanelles littoral and along the shores of the Sea of Marmora, it is evident that it would require a great Anglo-French force to combat the Turkish troops with equal chance of success.

Turks Are Active.

By working feverishly during the lull in the operation the Turks have managed to strengthen their forts and construct placements for new hidden batteries. The Turks have a number of moveable batteries with guns mounted on motor trucks and railway carriages and these are shifted from place to place, making it difficult for the British and French gunners to get their range.

Official advices from Rear Admiral Guzeprat indicate that early reports of the allies' success in the Dardanelles were exaggerated slightly. It had been reported unofficially from Athens that the war ships had penetrated the Dardanelles for 15 miles, but the French admiral states that the waters of the strait are clear only as far as Kephez Burnu, which is 12 miles from the entrance. The main mine fields are between Chanak (Kale Sultane) and Kilid Bahr on the narrows.

Smyrna Bombardment Stops.
The absence of official information relative to operations against Smyrna indicates that there has also been a cessation of the bombardment of the Turkish forts defending that city.

The Turkish claim, made some time ago that a French submarine had been sunk, is now confirmed.

Mrs. Buxton is suffering from bronchial pneumonia and pleurisy.

Minister Won't Bury Certain Club Members

Meyersdale, Pa., Mar. 19.—Members of lodges that permit sideboards in their rooms will not be accorded a Christian burial by members of the Meyersdale Ministerial Association. A resolution to that effect has been passed. Members of lodges have not decided whether they will permit the ministers to interfere with their dining or not.

"Because," says the resolution, "of the pure and exalted position of the church, the members of the ministerial association believe it to be inconsistent for them to be officially associated in the services of the burial of the dead of any lodge that maintains a liquor sideboard."

Mayor's Home Is Dynamited

New York, March 19.—The home of Mayor Daniel Hermann, of Guttenburg, N. J., a suburb, was wrecked early today by the explosion of a bomb. A hole was torn in the wall of the house, windows were broken and the entire community was awakened. No one was injured.

Mayor Hermann discharged the Guttenburg police force of eight men sixteen months ago, on the ground that they had no work to do and the town was so orderly no police were needed. The police took the matter to the courts, where it is now pending. When the bomb exploded this morning the police were holding their annual ball.

Asleep in the mayor's home at the time of the explosion was the mayor, his three brothers and his mother. The Guttenburg police, although officially discharged, are investigating.

District Commissioner Thompson and Deputy Mowrey May Get to Hold Their Jobs for Brief Spell— Question of Two-Thirds Vote Raised in Assembly.

There seems to be a certain amount of doubt as to whether or not District Tax Commissioner D. O. Thompson and Deputy Frank Mowrey will be thrown out of their jobs immediately. The question involves the legality of the manner in which the Beitler bill as well as other emergency measures, was passed, and is brought out by Edward W. Hughes, of Columbus assistant house clerk and parliamentarian.

Whether a bill, passed as an emergency measure, must receive a two-thirds vote in order to make it effective as an emergency, or whether only the emergency clause requires a two-thirds vote was a question raised in the general assembly at Columbus Friday which caused the Republicans considerable concern and district tax commissioners throughout the state, considerable satisfaction. On the settlement of this question depends the legality of the Beitler bill which was passed several days ago as an emergency measure transferring the duties and authority of the tax commissioner to the county auditor. Other important measures advocated by the Republican state administration which were passed as emergency bills are also under a cloud as a result of the question.

Constitution Is Clear

The constitution is clear in its requirement that the emergency clause must receive a two-thirds vote and must be voted on separately. But the Republicans have been following a precedent established by the Democrats at the last session of the assembly, when they passed bills by majority vote only, as is required for all bills, being satisfied with a two-thirds vote for the emergency clause alone, when such a clause was attached.

May Back Track

According to one report from Columbus Friday there was some sentiment that the assembly might decide to back-track on all of its emergencies.

And in the meantime the work of tax assessors will be commenced within a short time. It is thought that if the question proves to be one of much importance the Warnes law will be allowed to remain in effect thus allowing the district commissioners to continue their work until the administration tax measure, which will be passed soon, becomes effective next fall.

Small Dividend In Abbott Case

As the result of a judgment in an attachment proceedings of the Olinger Bros. vs. William Stewart, an order for sale was filed in Justice E. G. Abbott's court Friday. The amount of the judgment returned was $23.86, and the sale will take place March 30th.

Educational Exhibit by Keene Township Schools

Owing to the inclement weather Friday the stock-judging contest at Keen was called off and in its stead an exhibit of the work of the township schools was held in the Keene high school auditorium. All teachers of the township were present and their schools were well represented. Work of the different grades and of the high school was displayed and this, together with the music and other selections of the room, made the program a most interesting one.

Three Hundred Present

About three hundred were present and saw the work of the following teachers in the township schools: Russell Karr had the Barnes school with an especially good oral class and representation; I. R. Miller of the Reamer school was in charge of its work while Miss Rhoda Norman had charge of the Miller school. Her students' work in drawing was especially commendable. Miss Virgie Bowers, teacher of the Mud school also had a good representation and in the response to the roll call of schools responded by a vocal solo by one of her little girls.

Grade Work Also

The Keene grade work was also displayed by the following teachers: Miss Alma Sarrah was in charge of the work of the first, second and third grades and illustrated the work of those grades in 5th, 6th and 7th grades, illustrating the methods used in the teaching of intermediate arithmetic, which was quite interesting. E. G. Landis, the principal of the schools and teacher of the 7th and 8th grades, had charge of the work in grammar. The high (Continued On Page 5.)

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with cathartics. His efforts to banish it brought out these little liver-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or cathartics. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and heavy. Note how they "clear" clouded brains and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 15c each 25c per box. All druggists.

Echo of Popular Belief

The insurrection is merely an echo of the great popular belief that, despite official statements, Portugal has no cause for war in Africa. The government has announced that Germans have invaded Angola and has given out the list of dead and wounded. But, despite popular hatred of Germany the government has failed to convince the public that it did not take the first step.

This belief has been strengthened by the surreptitious circulation of private letters from reliable persons in Angola describing what has taken place.

When the first expedition went to Angola the commander had sealed orders which were not to be opened until his troops landed. Reports from Angola insist that these orders told him to attack the German province at once and take it by surprise. The attack was made before the troops were inspected, with the result that when it came time to shoot men armed with one make of rifle found that they had cartridges which should have been given to some one else. The sight of a Zeppelin flying over them added to the consternation of the troops. All the modern rifles had been sent to England.

These reports from relatives and reliable friends have strengthened the Portuguese determination to fight only when Portugal has a cause for war. German's patience with the tactics of the war party has added greatly to the belief that the Germans have not taken the initiative.

Plays Solo at Friend's Grave

Mt. Penn, Pa., March 18.—Just as the hour of midnight ushered in St. Patrick's day, Alvah O. Schaeffer, bandmaster and cornetist, appeared at the grave of Thomas C. Hannahoe, the former mayor of Reading's "Irish town," to fulfill a deathbed promise, that as long as he lived he would on this night annually play "The Lass of Galway" and "Near, My God, to Thee."

Schaeffer is now an invalid from rheumatism, and the Rainbow Fire Company, of which he is a member, conveyed him to the cemetery, and his former student, Charles Longenderfer, used Schaeffer's cornet and played the tunes as Schaeffer was standing at the head of the grave.

This was the first time in seventeen years that Schaeffer was unable to play the instrument himself. The fingers of both hands are crippled and Longenderfer has promised to play the tunes as long as Schaeffer is able to go annually to Hannahoe's grave.

Former Haiti President is Under Arrest

Washington, March 18.—Oreste Zamor, former president of Haiti, who was driven from his country by a recent revolution, is under arrest at Port au Prince, the capital, awaiting trial on the charge of having entered the country without a passport before a decree of amnesty was issued by the new government. He was taken to the capital from Hinoche, after having crossed from the Dominican republic.

The revolutionary army of General Guillaume, new president of Haiti, is reported to be disbanding, and order is said to prevail in the capital.

Children of Rich Starving.

Washington, March 19.—Children of the rich are starving in their luxurious homes, according to Dr. Harvey W. Wiley. Dr. Wiley declared that he has dined at the table of wealthy persons and watched their children consuming food in which there was insufficient nutriment. Dr. Wiley advocates no sweets for children, "not because sugar itself is injurious, but because the candy eating habit gives a child a 'sweet tooth' which is harmful."

Urges Foreign Born Citizens to be Patriotic

Cincinnati, March 18.—Asserting that the European belligerents in trampling on the rights of neutrals had made it difficult to keep the United States from being embroiled, Governor Edward F. Dunne, of Illinois, tonight pleaded with foreign-born Americans to aid the administration in the crisis by restraining from the public expression of whatever sympathies they may have with nations at war.

Speaking at a St. Patrick's day celebration of the Irish Fellowship Club, Governor Dunne said persons of foreign birth or lineage in America should place loyalty to this nation above all else.

He spoke of the pride Irishmen have in the part they took in the upbuilding of the United States and asserted that "at the present, more than ever in the history of this nation, should the citizen of Irish birth or lineage be careful to place his loyalty to the United States above his sympathies with any of the European countries."

"It is now the supreme duty of the statesmen in Washington to keep this country from being embroiled in the conflict in Europe. Day by day the belligerents are emphasizing on the rights of neutrals and making it almost impossible to keep our country from entanglement."

"In this critical situation it is the duty of every American citizen to uphold the president in his efforts to preserve peace between this country and the warring nations. Never in recent history was there greater need of moderation, tact and diplomacy of American statesmen and of loyalty by citizens."

"Hands off for Europe, hands up for America, should be our watchword."

Ask Women to Release Men for War

London, March 18.—"Any woman who, by working, helps to release a man or to equip a man for fighting, does a national war service," Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, says in an appeal to the women of the country.

"It is the full fighting power of the nation is to be put forth on the field of battle," the appeal continues, "the full working power of the nation must be made available to carry on its essential trades at home. In certain important occupations there are not enough men and women to do the work. In order to meet both the present and future needs of national industry, the government wishes to obtain particulars from all women available, with or without previous training, for paid employment. According, they invite all women who are prepared, if needed, to take paid employment of any kind—industrial, agricultural, clerical—to enter themselves on the register of women for war service. The registration is for finding out what reserve forces in women's labor, trained and untrained, can be made available, if required."

Manslaughter the Verdict.

Canton, O., March 19.—George Dawson, guard at the state hospital for the insane at Massillon, was found guilty of manslaughter for the killing of Alfred Tisch, a patient at the institution.

The Days of Windjammer Coming Back

By CALETON TEN EYCK
Written for the United Press
Fifteen men on a dead man's chest;

Yo ho, and a bottle of rum."

New York, March 19.—The days of the windjammers are coming back. Once again the four-masted and the smaller sailing crafts are ploughing the bounding main on trans Atlantic routes, gold cargoes in their holds and gold clinking in the captain's chest. The deep water sailor can tilt his pirate song on the plunging deck, reef the topsail or hurl belaying pins at the ship's cook to his heart's content, for he is a man again, bound for the old ports, with a man's job ahead of him in sailing a schooner through winter gales where before he hugged the coast line and took any old port in a storm.

South street is humming today with the biggest boom that the sailing industry has known since the steamship gained control of the high seas. The war has tied up big freighters in every part, and the supply of steam-driven bottoms is exhausted. It is now the windjammer's turn. The fore-and-aft sails are reappearing on transatlantic routes, and are booming again in the South American trade.

Within a week, deep sea charters were closed for six schooners in Canada and in the United States. They are filling their holds today with lumber and coal and cement, bound for the east coast of Ireland the West Coast of England with the rates twice as much as ever before.

Shippers are glad to pay $7.50 a ton on coal cargoes from New York to Buenos Ayres, and the sailing vessels are signing galore to deliver, the shipper even agreeing to pay loading and discharging cargoes as well as port fees.

The schooner Kenwood sailed for Cuba the other day, and she will bring back a cargo of sugar on which the shippers paid twenty cents a hundred pounds for freight.

By spring the American sailing coastwise trade may be abandoned by schooners whose fullness of years prevents their sharing in the deopsea trade. And the condition will last say shipping men, until the war is over, and perhaps a long time after the close.

The faculty of the Speyer school believes it has at last one world genius in the making. The educators who make up the faculty are studying and giving special attention to a class of ten "a typical" or unusual children. Dr. Ernest Horn, the principal and Dr. Louis E. Busch, who has given much attention to abnormal child psychology, say they have one pupil, only 5 years old, who does examples in fractions and reads history. There are others who have reached a more mature age and who lacks sufficient energy or comprehension to read their ABC's.

"Such children," said Dr. Horn require special attention. The prodigy and deficient child should be studied always as individuals." The Speyer school is related to Columbia University. If the tuition were reckoned in the ordinary way the cost of instruction for a 10-year-old child would be higher than that demanded for an adult college course. The most efficient talent in the city, however will give its services as a matter of psychological interest.

THE PROPER COURSE

Information of Priceless Value to Every Coshocton Citizen.

How to act in an emergency is knowledge of inestimable worth and this is particularly true of the diseases and ills of the human body. If you suffer with kidney backache, urinary disorders, or kidney trouble, the advice contained in the following statement should add a valuable asset to your store of knowledge. What could be more convincing proof of the efficiency of Doan's Kidney Pills than the statement of a Coshocton citizen who used them and who publicly tells of the benefit derived?

Mrs. B. E. Baker, 321 Brower Ave., Coshocton, says: "My kidneys were out of order and I had backache. I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Siegrist and Williams' Drug Store, and they brought me relief. I haven't had any symptom of kidney complaint since, and my kidneys have been in good shape."

The increase of one cent in the price of a loaf of bread might not seem very much—just a penny, you know—but it means a lot down on the East Side. The extra cents cuts into another nickel, and four cents never would buy much anyway. But the nickel would.

That's the way they're looking at it in New York, and some of the most able workers among the poor are trying to relieve the situation—just how, they don't know.

Attorney Sued for Big Amount

New York, March 18.—James W. Osborne, who was assistant district attorney for eleven years and was state graft hunter at various times, was sued in the supreme court today for $50,000 for breach of promise of marriage. The plaintiff is Miss Rae Tanzer, said to be about 24 years old, who is employed by a manufacturer of women's hats.

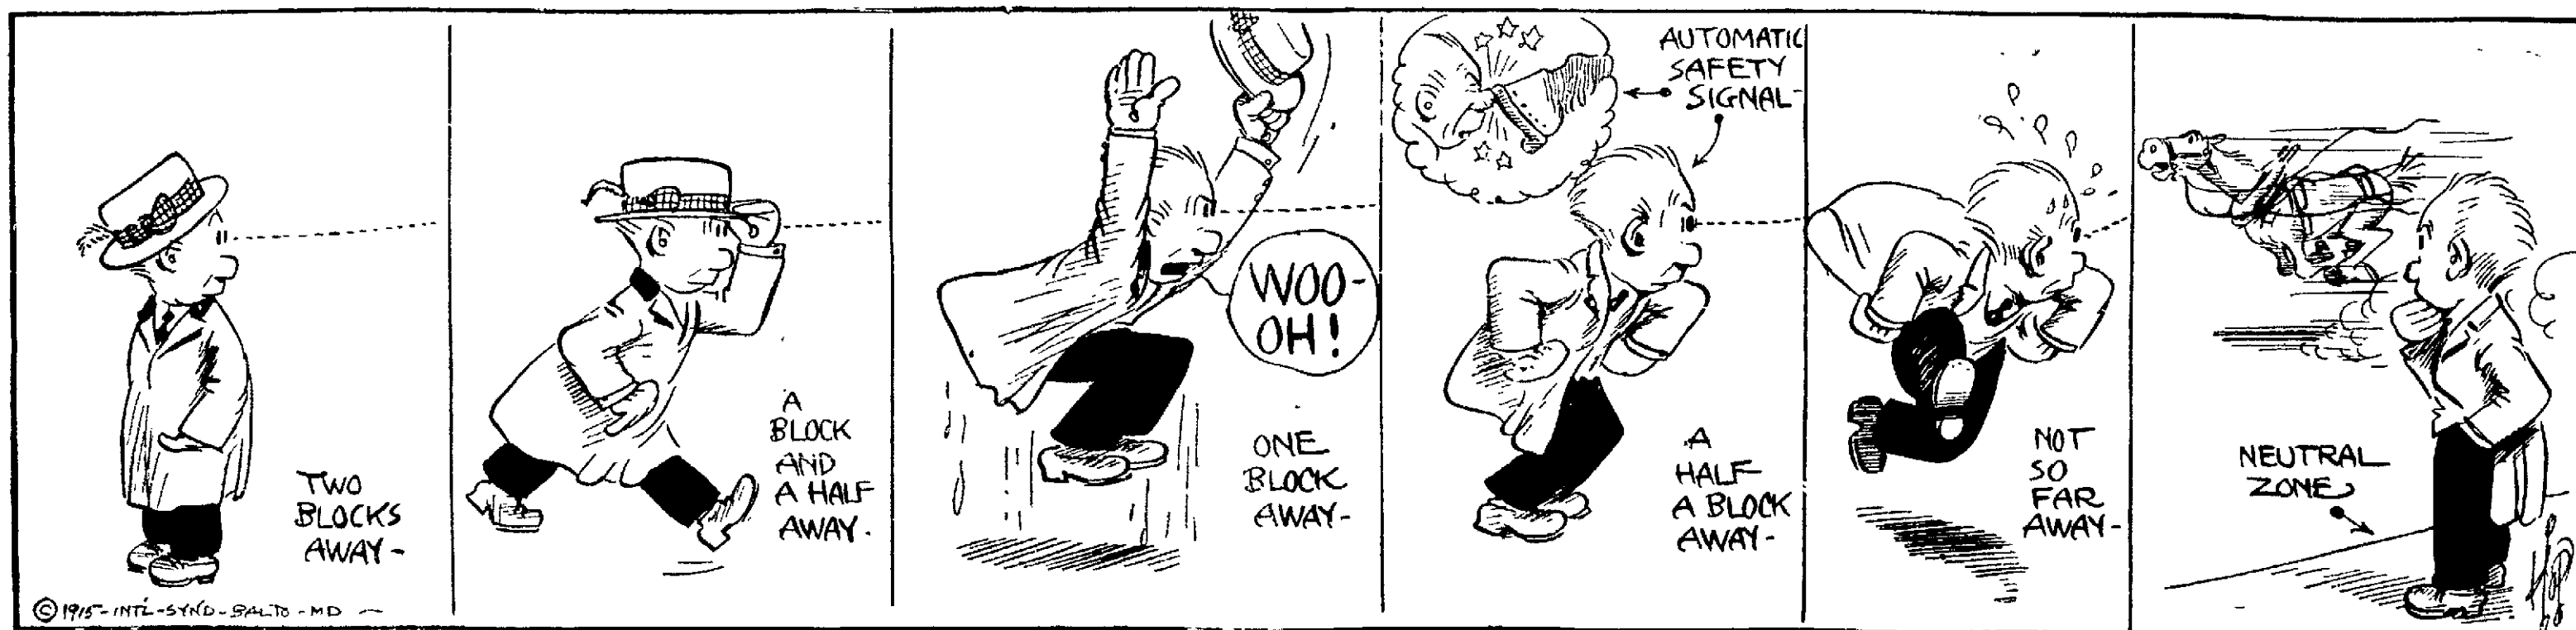

Mr. Osborne said this afternoon that if the things said about him by Miss Tanzer were true he must have done them when he was living in other than his normal state. He declared that he had never seen the young woman, but he showed several letters received from her at his office, addressed to "J. W. Osborne," in which the writer called him "Dear Oliver." The letters all expressed affection and made allusions to employing an attorney. Mr. Osborne refused to give out the contents of the letters for publication at present.

Attorneys for Miss Tanzer refused to discuss their client's case further than to say that they didn't bring the action until they had investigated her statements and had them corroborated by more than one witness.

Speaker Clark Compliments The President

Philadelphia, Pa., March 19.—Speaker Clark, addressing the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick here tonight, said of President Wilson: "It is no exaggeration to say that he bears a heavier load than any President since Lincoln has borne."

Speaker Clark reviewed the work of the Democratic Congress which, he said, had been accomplished with the aid and approval of Republican and Progressive votes, and predicted that any political party could not carry ten States on the repeal of the income tax.

"The Congress has done its work," he said. "Senators and Representatives have returned to their homes. The President remains in Washington because of the ticklish situation in which we find ourselves by reason of the trans-Atlantic war and the civil war. It is no exaggeration to say that he bears a heavier load than any President since Lincoln has borne. No man, no men, can relieve him of his burden. His troubles, being purely executive in character, are his and his alone."

In the very nature of things he knows more about what is going on abroad than does any other man in America, because he has better means of information.

"Every good citizen, without reference to politics or religion, should trust him and uphold him in this crisis of our country's fate. May God give him the wisdom, courage and strength to keep us out of entanglements with foreign nations and lead us in the paths of peace."

"The brilliant Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield, declared that contemporaneous foreign opinion as to a public man is identical with the final verdict of history. Most assuredly, then, Woodrow Wilson will be rated among the great Presidents, whose names can be counted on the fingers of one hand."

Funeral Car Transformed to Tango Car

Atlantic City, N. J., March 19.—The Atlantic City and Shore Fast line six months ago went to considerable expense to have a finely equipped trolley car twice the size of the ordinary cars, constructed to carry funeral parties to the cemeteries on the mainland. At the end of the six months today they found the car a dead loss.

Work was started this morning to make it pay. It will be transformed into a "tango car." The central seats will be removed, a maple floor will be put down and waxed, and then the car will be put in special service to carry parties to the country clubs on the main line. They may tango over and tango back.

"There's more than one way of making ends meet," said the officials.

Will Raise Anarchists On Big Farm

New York, March 19.—The Francisco Ferrer school of Anarchists of Manhattan has arranged to buy the Walter Rush farm of sixty-nine acres in Raritan township, near Metuchen, N. J.

"Our main object in establishing this colony," said Harry Kelly, Chairman of the Ferrer Settlement, yesterday, "is to produce genuine Anarchists, and we must rear our children in an Anarchistic atmosphere."

The farm is to be a sort of Anarchistic headquarters in the East, according to Kelly, and is to be cut into small farms. The tract adjoins the Socialists colony.

BUSY WEEK AHEAD.

Many Important Bills to Come Up in Ohio Legislature.

Columbus, March 19.—Following the recess of the legislature Republican leaders began consideration of several important "rippers" which are scheduled for passage next week.

According to Senator Howard, Republican floor leader, next week will be the busiest and most important session of the assembly thus far, and will witness the enactment of some of the big administration measures.

Most important among the bills up for consideration are the McDermott liquor decentralizer, on the calendar for Tuesday afternoon.

The Whittemore-Parrott tax "ripper," which abolishes the county tax commissioners and makes the ward and township assessors elective instead of appointive, is scheduled for action. Wednesday afternoon Republican senators are confident the bill will pass by a party vote. Should it fail to carry Senator Garver will urge immediate action on his tax bill, which contains practically the same provisions as the Whittemore-Parrott bill.

The senate committee on education has reported favorably on the Stone-Plumb "ripper," which abolishes district superintendents and exempts first-class village high schools from the jurisdiction of country superintendents. Senator Stone will ask that the bill be placed on the calendar for Thursday.

Senator Archer will urge action on his bill next week, which delegates to the state industrial commission the right to regulate the working hours of women and to provide for one day's rest in seven for laborers.

The Lloyd bill, placing the loan shark business under the supervision of the state bank department, is also scheduled for consideration next week.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

Italians Continue to Discuss Nation's Entrance Into War.

Rome, March 19.—A conference of the principal government officials was held with Premier Salandra. It is understood there has been no change in the situation.

Prince Von Buelow, the German ambassador, has not solicited further conferences with the government. Outwardly he is inactive, but really he is negotiating indirectly through a senator who is a close friend of Premier Salandra. The report that the cession of Trent had actually been offered to Italy can not be substantiated.

Seventy deputies, including several former ministers, tendered a luncheon to the Belgian member of parliament, Jules Desclée, and several speeches in favor of war were delivered. Signor Bissolati said that the fate of Belgium depends upon Italy's abandonment of her neutrality.

News of Naval Battle.

Valparaiso, Chile, March 19.—The British auxiliary cruiser Orana, which took part in the battle in which the Dresden was sunk, brought the first news of the sinking of the German armed merchantman Navarera, on Nov. 17. The Orana, which had been taken over by the British admiralty early in the war and fitted with a formidable battery, sighted the Navarera off the river Platte. The two auxiliaries exchanged shots and the upper guns of the German vessel were soon afire. The crew of the Navarera soon took to the water and were rescued by the Orana. The latter then steamed close to the Navarera, which was sinking, and sent a few shots into the German which settled her.

Married Teacher Fights For Job

Washington, March 19.—Mrs. Carl A. Hollman, a teacher in the public schools here, who was dismissed by the Board of Education yesterday because she was married last July, intends to fight for reinstatement. Her attorney announced today he is preparing to take the case to the courts.

Mrs. Hollman's dismissal was ordered at a secret meeting of the board. Three women members of the board had expressed publicly their disapproval of the rule which automatically dismisses teachers when they marry. Dr. Cora Smith King, a member of the board, said today:

"This rule is a menace to morals and an unwarranted handicap upon any individual natural right to marry."

NAVAL OFFICERS DELIGHTED.

New Sixteen Inch Gun Proves Efficiency at Indian Head Grounds.

Washington, March 19.—The two battleships provided for in the current naval bill may be armed with sixteen inch rifles, the heaviest naval guns ever designated.

Already the new sixteen inch navy gun has been subjected to tests at the Indian Head proving grounds, and while details of its construction and performance closely are guarded, it is known that the gigantic weapon has given proof of its efficiency which delighted navy ordnance experts.

Some idea of the probable size of the new American gun may be gathered from the fact that each of the eight fifteen inch guns of the British battleship Queen Elizabeth weighs ninety-six tons, while similar rifles designed for German battleships each weigh more than eighty-two tons.

With the increase in size, the life of the gun is shortened by erosion due to the heat generated by the explosion of the huge charge of powder necessary to hurl nearly a ton of metal fifteen miles—that is said to be the range of the American sixteen inch weapon. The rifling of the gun burns out under the blast. Drops of melted steel are visible in the bore after each shot, and it is said that the life of the Queen Elizabeth's fifteen inch weapons is less than 100 shots each. After that the gun is so inaccurate as to be virtually useless.

Naval gun designers have overcome that obstacle somewhat. It is said with the new American sixteen inch gun; but the life of the gun is still far below that of the fourteen inch.

COSHOCKTON MORNING TRIBUNE

Entered as second class mail matter at the postoffice at Coshocton, O., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

A NATION OF TENANT FARMERS

This is the "moving season" for American farmers. This expression, "moving season," has an ominous sound. It means better for us if America never heard it. It means better for the United States, our people, our institutions, our land and our homes if there were no such custom as "moving season" anywhere within the broad confines of this nation.

For it simply means that we are becoming a nation of tenant farmers. It means that the old independence is dying out. It means that landlordism and all that word stand for, is planting itself in America. FOR AS LANDLORDISM COMES IN, FREEDOM GOES OUT.

In this section of the United States the migration of tenant farmers begins about March 1. The tenant of one farm packs up his household and farm equipment and moves to another rented farm. The farm he leaves is immediately after occupied by one like himself, the newcomer, in turn, having packed up his personal belongings and left the farm he had occupied the year before.

The migration of tenants bodes no good for the farms or for the country in general. For the man who cultivated a certain parcel of ground last year can cultivate it better this year. He has come to know the land and the land knows him. He has studied and mastered the peculiarities of the land. He knows what fields ought to be plowed and what ones ought to lie fallow. He knows where and what kind of fertilizers are needed. He knows what particular crops will grow best on a given portion of the farm.

True, the new tenant will learn all this in time; but what a fearful waste of time and ground fertility there is while the educational process is going on. There is a loss to the soil and a loss to the manhood of the nation—and we can ill afford either. The highest good can only be obtained from the soil by the man who farms for the future. And the typical tenant farmer naturally never looks to the future. The future to him means only ceaseless change, with the chances that each year's end will see him a little nearer the dead line of helpless poverty than the year preceding.

The evils of tenantry are more pronounced in the south than they are in the north—and thinking men here are realizing that it is bad enough with us. To show what the south is up against in this respect we have clipped the following from the Greenville (Texas) Banner. The figures show better than words the alarming extent farm tenantry has taken hold of the newer states of the Union. Here is a portion of the article referred to:

Only 99,734 or 24 per cent of the farms of Texas, are entirely owned by the farmers who are operating on them.

Less than eight per cent of the Texas tenant farmers pay cash rentals.

There are 314,263 homeless farmers in Texas and only 55,000 of them are negroes, leaving 259,000 white farmers that do not own the soil they till or the homes they live in.

There are 219,575 tenant farmers in Texas, and in addition to this number 28,348 farm land owners rent additional land, making a total of 247,923 farm land renters in the State.

More than 202,000 Texas tenant farmers operate on a share basis while only 17,549 pay cash rental.

In 1880 only 38 per cent of the Texas farmers were tenants, 42 per cent in 1890, 50 per cent in 1900 and 50 per cent in 1910.

Tenants constitute 53 per cent of the farm operators of Texas, and cultivate 47 per cent of the tillable land.

During the past twenty years the number of all farms in Texas has increased 83 per cent, while the farms operated by tenants has a gain of 130 per cent. Farm home owners have increased only 50 per cent during this time.

The land and buildings on the tenant farms of Texas are worth only one-half as much as those on the farms operated by owners.

This is a fearful showing for one of the newest and richest states of the Union. While we have not the figures at hand, we believe

THE MONARCH

By Walt Mason

The king sat in his palace, a few brief ages back, and from his golden chalice he drank a quart of sack. And dames with sunny ringlets, and courtiers brave and gay, were there to keep his kinglets from yawning life away. The chimney didn't draw well, the room was full of smoke, and so the king said, "Aw, well, we'll just sit here and choke." No screen was on the window—which surely was a sin—so there was naught to hinder the flies from coming in. They bit the royal person and kept his royal nobs a rippin' round and cursin' like any vulgar swabs. No phonograph to cheer him, no phone through which to swear, and no convenience near him that modern folks could bear! The workman in his cottage, who feeds his children four the predigested pottage bought at the corner store, more luxury is knowing than knew the kings of old, with all their bunk and blowing of fields of cloth of gold. Just think of mighty Edward, the ruler of his land, as he went stumbling bedward, a rushlight in his hand! And still the memory lingers of mighty chiefs of York, who ate meat with their fingers, because they had no fork. The kings who dwelled in splendor in gloomy ancient halls, we knew a beet-stick tender, nor sampled codfish balls.

VOICE OF SPRING

The gentle rains are falling, the voice of Spring is calling. "Get busy, sons of men! Old Winter's shed his garment, and every living creature should look alive again!" Get busy with your knitting! This is no time for sitting and dreaming by the stove; all Nature is exclaiming, the idle troller shaming, "The Springtime has arrived!" The old gray hen is cackling, for once again she's tackling her great time-honored stunt; she, in her lowly station helps out the hungry nation, as for the eggs we hunt. The mule works in the collar until the galled spots holler for divers healing salves, the cows are softly singing, as from the woods they're bringing their tall, long-legged calves. It is the time for toiling, that pots may all be boiling when Winter comes again; it is the time enchanting when we prepare for planting—get busy, sons of men! The voice of Spring is urging: "It is the time for splurging," so tenderly she sighs: "shake off the sloth of Winter, and hustle like a sprinter who's trotting for a prize!"

statistics will show an even worse state of affairs in Oklahoma and practically as bad in Arkansas, Louisiana and nearly all the other southern states. In the north the evil is growing apace. Here in Ohio the small farm owner is passing out and the tenant is coming in. In Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska, the backbone of agricultural America, the same situation prevails.

It is a condition that is making thoughtful men ask where will it end. It is a situation that we have brought wholly on ourselves by clinging to an unfair, unscientific and oppressive system of taxation, and unless we seek and apply a remedy our claim to the title, "Land of Opportunity," is bound to pass from us.

Now that congress has adjourned we expect Lodge and Gardner and Hobson, and a lot of other boosters for the armor plate trust have gone to the Atlantic coast where they can see the submarines bob up and hear the buzz of the approaching Zeppelins.

Indiana state officials are complimenting themselves on getting a $400,000 loan at an unusually low rate of interest. Yes, but wouldn't there have been more cause for congratulation if they had saved the state from borrowing anything at all?

A news item says that a cigaret dropped in a rubbish heap in Philadelphia caused a loss of nearly three quarters of a million dollars. That's what any city may expect that maintains a rubbish heap.

President Hadley of Yale says no man has a right to enter politics under present conditions unless he has an independent fortune. We always thought they entered politics to gain that very thing.

A foreigner in California was given the choice of returning to Europe and enlisting or going to the pen. He chose the latter and proved beyond a doubt that he isn't a bit crazy.

The Wise Guy says: the only remedy we know of for the young woman who has more money than she knows what to do with is to get married.

PEOPLES' FORUM

WAR AND RELIGION

Editor The Tribune:

In your news columns yesterday morning you carried an account of an address delivered by John Mott to the Methodist men at Columbus Thursday. This address was on the European war which he characterized as the greatest revival in history.

If this was the only utterance of this character by churchmen one would loath to believe that the church took this view point of the war. But time and again since the war started, religious leaders have given utterances to similar sentiments. An editorial in a recent issue of the Christian Herald contains this language: "There are multiplying evidences that a great spiritual change is being wrought throughout the world, as the war progresses. In France, Germany and England, we hear of crowded churches, of great audiences tense with feeling, of pastors earnestly striving to lead the multitudes nearer to God. It is a time of general awakening; of deep heart-searching; of the dispersion of the clouds of skepticism and unbelief; of a new realization of accountability to God for all the sins and shortcomings of nations, communities and individuals. Reports that reach us show that the people are coming back to Him whom they have neglected and forgotten."

Over against that read what Phil Rader says in the Cleveland Press of March 18, of life in the trenches: "Living cheek to jowl with dead men—that is the thing that turns you into a beast. But it is a part of trench life that is unavoidable."

In giving an account of how a soldier and red cross nurses were killed he says: "Experiences like this hardened us." And in closing his article he says: "If you think that heroism and fine ideals grow in the trenches you're wrong. The life is too beast-like for such human things."

Now in consideration of the fact as taught by history that in Christian countries, during war times there is a revival of the religious spirit and considering the well known beastliness, brutality and degenerating influence of war; the question arises, as it in the atmosphere of war, pestilence and misery where the Christian religion thrives the best? And is it, in the atmosphere of peace, contentment and happiness where the spirit of irreligion and skepticism develops?

If that be true then we can understand why the church is so bitterly opposed to the only movement that offers any hope for world peace and offers any hope

SCROFULA AND ALL HUMORS GIVE WAY

There are many things learned from experience and observation that the older generation should impress upon the younger. of the means of life.

There may be many exciting causes of this war, but in the last analysis it is due to commercial rivalry between the different nations. England was not simply jealous of German culture, of German progress in the arts and sciences. In a large sense these things are international. Germany had been selling where England once sold, and to some extent where France once sold. Germany was taking the living out of the mouths of the English and French.

Now the way to prevent future wars, is not as one good brother expressed it at the Presbyterian banquet by the extension of the principles of brotherhood but by destroying the system that makes commercial rivalry necessary.

The brotherhood of England are finding it necessary to shoot the brotherhood of Germany. These people are not corrupt and evil at heart, but cultured Christian gentlemen. Still they find it necessary to make war upon each other.

Intelligent commercial men admit this and I respect them for their intelligence but here comes the Christian and says that God is working out his great purpose through this war and I have no respect whatever for his intelligence. He is honest and well meaning, but he does not offer an intelligent solution to the problem. Rather he glories in the development of the religious spirit through this war.

This valley of superstition in which so many of us live stifles thought and investigation, stifles the noblest human sentiments and makes us appear to be savages and barbarians instead of civilized men and women. "Israel doth not know and my people doth not consider." "Come now let us reason together," is the need of the hour. The God of war is not the God our mothers taught us around her fireside and at her knee. He is a modern Moloch and thinking people and all who love the race should reject and deny him.

ARGUMENTS EXAMINED.

Government Gets Ready to Make Further Blockade Representations.

Washington, March 19.—A view to establishing a basis upon which further representations may be made to the allied governments regarding their blockade of Germany, state department officials began an exhaustive examination of the mass of data and argument contained in the British and French notes, it already is apparent, however, that the next statement of the United States to the allies on this subject will be narrowed down to a few specific questions. The issues that are still likely to prove the subject of vigorous objection on the part of the United States are those involving the seizure of contraband goods proceeding to or from Germany via neutral territory, the lack of definiteness in the allies' statement as to the radius of operations and their intention to punish at any subsequent period a vessel which has proceeded to the enemy port through deception.

There is now a disposition in official quarters here to accept as a fact the blockade of German ports which the British and French declare in their notes will be maintained by a cruiser cordon. But it is doubted whether the United States government can acquiesce in the allies' intention of holding themselves free to detain goods proceeding to or from Germany in neutral ships and through neutral countries.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Joseph Hayward, an engineer in the United States army on his way to Fort Harker, meets Simon Girty, a renegade whose name has been connected with all manner of atrocities, also headed for Fort Harker with a message from the British general, Hamilton. Hayward guides him to the fort and protects him from a number of scouts who tried to kill him.

CHAPTER II—At General Harker's headquarters Hayward meets Rene, a French officer who professes to recognize him, although he has no recollection of ever having seen her before.

CHAPTER III—Hayward volunteers to carry a message for Hamilton to Sandusky where Hamilton is stationed. The north-west Indian tribes are ready for war and are only held back by the return of the latter. Hayward is to take the message to Sandusky, a religious teacher whom they believe to be a prisoner. Hayward's mission is to assure the Wyandots that the man is not held by the soldiers. Harker impresses upon him the importance of reaching Hamilton before Girty.

CHAPTER IV—Rene asks Hayward to let her accompany him. She tells him that she is a French officer's daughter and a missionary among the Indians. She has been in search of her father. She insists that she has no other home but the north accompanied by a scout named Brady and a private soldier.

CHAPTER V—The camp and the trail leads to a small hut in a hut on an island. Hayward finds a murdered man in the hut.

CHAPTER VI—It proves to be Rene, a French officer, who is called by the Wyandots. He is puzzled by her insistence that they have met before.

CHAPTER VII—Rene recognizes the murdered man as her father who was known among the Indians as Wa-pa-teah.

CHAPTER VIII—She tells Hayward her father was killed among the Indians and had spent his life among the Indians converting them to Christianity.

CHAPTER IX—Hayward reports seeing a band of marauding Indians in the vicinity and with them Simon Girty. Brady's evidence convinces the girl that there is a British officer by the name of Hayward who resembles the American.

CHAPTER X—Finding escape from the island, the girl and her companions prepare to resist an attack from the Indians.

CHAPTER XI—Rene overhears around the cabin at night Hayward discovers a white man in a British uniform and leaves him for dead, after a desperate fight.

CHAPTER XII—The Indians capture the cabin after a hard struggle in which Hayward is wounded.

CHAPTER XIII—Rene saves Hayward from death at the hands of the savages and conceals him in the cellar of the cabin.

I got to my hands and knees, determined to discover for myself the nature of the passage. Any form of action was better than merely to lie there inert. I had to creep forward, and found barely room for the passage of my body. My wound still hurt sufficiently to make me cautious of every movement, and consequently my advance was slow. There never was blacker darkness; it was like a weight pressing me back, and the silence was like that of the grave. I could hear my own breathing, but my hands and knees made no sound on the earth floor. Whatever of savage fury was occurring above, no echo found way to where I burrowed below. To all appearance the tunnel ran in a direct line; at least I could discover no evidence of deviation. If D'Auray had constructed it, then he must have known something of engineering, and been in possession of instruments. The work could not have been done by blind digging. Still, it might have been originally an open ditch, banked and lined with timber, and then covered, and the earth tamped down.

I stopped to rest a moment, sitting cross-legged, my head barely escaping the roof. Suddenly from out that intense darkness before me, came a peculiar sound. Intensified by the long silence, and the contracted walls, I could not tell whether it was cough

Or groan, faint exclamation or growl. Perspiration beaded my forehead, my hands like ice, as I stared ahead listening. There was no repetition, no movement. Could I have dreamed the thing? Could it be delirium from the fever of my wound? No! Surely not; I was sane enough; my ears were not deceived. Something—man or animal—was certainly there in the tunnel hiding, crouched in the darkness, unaware as yet of my presence. Then it would not be an animal; it must be a man.

I got upon hands and knees again, slowly and with utmost caution, aware that if I was to escape notice I must advance as stealthily as a wild cat, the slightest sound would carry far in that gallery. I moved forward a yard, two, three yards, extending one hand out into the dark and feeling about carefully, before venturing another inch. Mine were the movements of a snail.

I had almost convinced myself there was nothing there, either brute or human; yet some instinct continually told me there was. I felt an uncanny presence, and an ill-defined sense of danger I could not cast off. I came to a pause, actually afraid to go on, my flesh creeping with strange horror. I dashed on one knee, my face thrust forward as I stared blindly into the awful blackness. I even held my breath in suspense, listening for the slightest movement. Merciful God! Some one—something—was actually there! I could hear now the faint pulsing of a breath, as though through clogged nostrils; yes, and a meaningless muttering of the lips.

CHAPTER XIV.

A Struggle Underground.

I remained poised, breathless, huddled in the dark, hesitating. A dozen considerations flashed through my mind, as I swiftly decided what to do. I could scarcely hope to move backward without noise; nor, if I succeeded, would I be any better off with him still blocking the passage? There was nothing for it then but to come to hand grips. But the fellow, whoever he might be—whether white or Indian—was doubtless armed, while I was weaponless. To get him right was a desperate chance, yet a chance which must be taken. Fortunately I had him located, his heavy breathing being unmistakable, and evidence also that the man remained unaware of my presence.

I shifted one foot forward to get firmer purchase, and then grasped for him through the darkness. My hand came in contact with a shoulder; then gripped a mass of long hair. He gave vent to a sudden cry, startled, almost inhuman in its wildness, struggling backward so quickly my other hand closed on air. But I held hard to what I had, dragged off my balance, feeling his fingers after my throat. There was no room for us to do otherwise than claw at each other. After that first cry neither of us uttered a sound, but I closed in on him, getting a stronger grip. He was a man, a white man, for he wore a rough coat, and his face was covered with a growth of straggly, coarse whiskers. Enemy or friend I could not be sure, nor did I find opportunity to discover. We both fought like beasts, resorting to teeth and nails. He was seemingly not a large man, but wiry and muscular. His very lack of size was an advantage in that narrow space, besides I was weakened by loss of blood, and with every movement my wound hurt.

His one object was to wrench himself loose, but my fortunate grip on his hair foiled this effort. Yet both his hands were free, the one clutching my throat; but, in those first breathless seconds, I could not locate the other. He was lying on his side, with right arm underneath. Fearful of a weapon, I let the fellow gouge at my throat with long ape-like fingers, while I struggled fiercely to expose the hidden hand. If it proved empty I knew I could handle the man; that I possessed the strength to draw him to me, to crush him into subjection within the vise of my arms. Straining every muscle I could bring into play, I succeeded in forcing him over onto his face. But he was a cat, wiry, full of tricks. In some manner he twisted his arm out of my grip. There was a flash of reddish yellow flame searing across my eyes, an awful report, like an explosion in my stunned ears. Where the bullet went I will never know, but I saw the man's face leap out at me from the darkness—just an instant of reflection, as though thrown against a screen by some flash of light—the unmistakable face of a negro

And his was a hideous visage; the memory of it lingers with me yet. Swift as it appeared and vanished in that burst of flame, I shall never forget the glare of the man's eyes, the malignant snarl of the open lips, the teeth cruel and snag-like, and the yellowish-black of his face. It was as if I held some foul fiend of hell in my grip.

Yet started as I was by this apparition, his view of me had no less an effect. Even in that single instant of revelation, the hate in his eyes changed to fear, to uncontrollable panic; his lips gave vent to a wild cry, an exclamation in mongrel French, and, before I could stiffen in resistance, or recover from my own shock, the fellow flung his pistol at me, and jerked free. The flying weapon tore a gash in my scalp, but his haste and fear proved his own undoing. Half stunned as I was by the blow, I heard him spring to his feet, the dull crash of his head as he struck the hardwood slab of the low roof, and then the thud of a body on the tunnel floor. In his haste, his desperation, his strange fright, he had forgotten where he was, and attempted to spring erect. My head reeled, the blood from this new cut trickling down my cheek. The negro lay motionless in the darkness; I could not even distinguish his breathing, although I hesitated, listening intently, half fearing some trick.

What had frightened the fellow so? What had brought that look of insane terror into his eyes? It was as if he stared at a ghost, the very sight of which had crazed him. I mastered my own nerves, and crept forward along the passage, feeling blindly in advance with one outstretched hand, until it came in contact with the man's figure. He lay full length on the tunnel floor, and I had to find my way over him to reach his head. It was difficult to touch him, to place my fingers against his flesh. The memory of those snarling, wolfish lips, and that yellow skin, caused me to shrink from direct contact. Yet I must assure myself. I could not leave the man lying there, possibly to recover consciousness and do injury. Of one thing I was assured—this French negro could be no friend.

With clinched teeth, I touched the coarse hair with my fingers; then the forehead. The flesh retained some warmth; yet the feeling was not natural—it seemed lifeless. For the instant this appeared impossible. Why, he did it himself; he crashed his own skull against the slab. Yet I could not make the affair seem real, or probable. And a negro! I had seen few of the race, but had always been told they were of thick skull, but if this man was actually dead, his head must have been smashed like an egg-shell. And it was—I found the gash a moment later, the jagged edge of bone. The fellow was dead, stone dead; there was no heat to his heart, no throbbing to his pulse. Still dazed by the discovery, I ran my fingers along the roof overhead, hoping to find something there which would account for the mystery. No flat surface could ever have jabbed that wound. Ah! I felt it—the sharp point of a stake protruding between the logs. The poor fellow had struck that with sufficient force to penetrate the brain.

I conquered my abhorrence, and searched him, finding tobacco, a knife—an ugly weapon—flint and steel, a few coins, and some powder and rifle balls. There were no pistol bullets, and the thought occurred to me that the smaller weapon probably did not belong to him; he had appropriated it elsewhere. I crept about, and across the body, searching for it in vain, but I found the rifle, and took time to test its flint, and load it.

TWO MORE VICTIMS.

German Submarines Continue Active in English Channel.

London, March 19.—Two more British steamers have been torpedoed by German submarines, it was announced.

The Glasgow steamer Hyndford was torpedoed in the channel. The Cardiff steamer Blinnet, en route from Argentina to London with a cargo of grain, was also attacked in the channel and sent to the bottom without warning.

The Bluejacket crew launched two boats and started for shore in the darkness. One boat reached New Haven with part of the crew. Lifeboats are searching for the second boat.

BOSTON WOOL.

Boston, Mass., March 19.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow: "Except for the further considerable sales in foreign wool this week, the market has been dull, almost to stagnancy. Prices on domestic wools, which had reached an unduly high level, have shown a further tendency to recede, but the undertone of the market is generally strong, as reflected in the firmness of prices in the foreign markets. There are no reports from the west indicating any change of moment in the situation."
